

Research Integrity

Do you feel pressure to publish could lead you to cut corners?

Would you share your latest research ideas or findings via social media?

If you design and conduct a research project, does the research material you collect belong to you?

Research should always be challenging.

But make sure you are equipped to deal with the issues that may arise when planning, conducting and reporting your research.

Research Integrity is an online course which will:

- ▶ Enable you to conduct research of the highest quality and increase confidence in your published works
- ▶ Help you meet the criteria for many key funding bodies
- ▶ Update you on best practice in responsible research behaviour and so improve your career prospects.
