

Identify the most effective ways to communicate your research to the wider world

Disseminating your Research helps researchers understand the best ways to communicate their research, from navigating the publishing world to maximising potential at conferences by using new digital tools that enhance research impact in the wider world.

Disseminating Your Research courses:

- Getting Published supports researchers as they start to think about publishing their research, guiding them from the early planning stages to submission and responding to reviewer feedback.
- Communicating your research with impact provides support and guidance on communicating research work to a range of audiences using digital tools and innovative communication methods.

Access the Disseminating your Research programme:

